

Anatomy of First Bite.

What is the best moment of one's food experience?

What is the best moment of your food experience?

Which senses are the most heightened before you take your first forkful?

If you had to give up one of your senses, which would it be?

When was the last time you ate something new for the first time?

