INTRODUCTION

The Malaysian Marketing Conference 2026 is in its 15th year and is themed simply FEARLESS: It is the refusal to play small, speak in sanitised slogans, or let consensus dilute every decision into something forgettable. Choosing sharp intent over vague messaging, outcomes over optics and integrity over convenience. FEARLESS is for leaders who would rather be respected than merely liked, who would rather be precise than popular and who understand that real growth comes from hard choices made early, not excuses made later.

AGENT PROVOCATEUR

Prof Harmandar Singh
Creative Provocateur

After joining McCann Erickson Malaysia as a copywriter in 1980, he was promoted to Associate Creative Director by 1983. From there, he moved into senior creative roles outside Malaysia, including McCann Philippines (1983) and McCann London (1986). He later returned to Malaysia and served as Creative Director for Universal Communications (a McCann offshoot) and then Idris Associates, described as Malaysia's largest local communications agency. Harmandar Singh, known as Ham, is an advertising creative director gone rogue. He has created over 400 TV commercials and picked up scores of awards to his name early in his career.

Terengganu-born and proud about it Ham has served as a creative leader in top ad agencies in Kuala Lumpur (since 1980), weekend stints in Singapore (1982), in Manila (1983), London (1986), and stints in New York (1988), Tokyo (1989). He has his own magazine called MARKETING Weekender that tickles over 30,000 readers every weekend. It is free to sign-up.

Ham was the first to start an independent ad industry magazine in the region called ADOI 30 years ago but has since folded the publishing business in Singapore (2004 - 2011) citing boredom, and in Jakarta (2008-2016) which he later gave away to his staff.

In 2009, in a fit of psychotropic exuberance, Ham created and hosted the Youth Engagement Summit (YES), inspired by Obama's victory on the theme of Change. Featuring Donald Trump (via satellite), Twitter Founder Biz Stone, Facebook's Randi Zuckerberg, Bob Geldof, etc.

Ham founded and still runs industry events like the Malaysian Media Conference, Malaysian Marketing Conference & CMO Awards, Dragons, APPIES, etc. He also authors the Ham Report on award-winning Agency and Campaign rankings based on 6 top shows in Malaysia. In 2021, Ham wrote Rainmaker, a paperback on his experiences, and two year later, acclaimed TVC director Paul Loosley penned a book on Ham's early biography.

FEARLESS CREATIVE

VJ Anand
Founder & Chief Experiment Officer, Ballsy

From building agencies to making stu go viral, VJ Anand is your guy. This Taiping-born lad is one of Malaysia's finest creative exports and has now returned to the region.

Former Senior Vice President of Creative of Gojek , Indonesia's first decacorn tech giant, and then the Regional Head of Creative and Managing Partner of VaynerMedia APAC , VJ is your go-to guy if you want your brand to be the talk of the town.

At Gojek, VJ helped grow an internal creative team from 10 people to a 120-strong team. He headed up the creative, social, in-app content, and activation for the Indonesian decacorn. He helped rebrand them in his last months at Gojek and created an iconic branding sounds for the Indonesian giant.

His last piece of work which was a music video with Rich Brian for Gojek went viral, leading to a hire by Gary Vaynerchuk to help build VaynerMedia APAC. VJ came into an agency of four people and helped grow it to an agency of 221. Here, VJ has run numerous global and regional campaigns for Google, Disney+, Subway, SK-II and global work conceptualising and shooting a music video with John Legend for the SK-II brand.

VJ has launched 'ballsy', an independent brand consultancy based in Singapore last year which now has extended to London.

At this Conference, he will take aim at "safe" creative and the beige work that passes for progress. He will unpack what fearless creative really demands in an AI-soaked world, with sharper truths, fewer committees and ideas with teeth...

FEARLESS PANELISTS

Mia Goh
Manager, Ms. Bianca.

Long before Mia Goh was writing brand manifestos and campaign scripts, she imagined a future as an artist. That early passion led her into a specialized high school, where students already building brands, pitching ideas and defending their work in front of panels.

"I thought I would become a graphic designer," she recalls. "Then I met a university counsellor who changed my mind. He said it's not easy. It's not always about getting to create the art you want to create."

That realisation pushed Mia to explore the wider communications world through media studies, advertising and design - until she discovered copywriting.

Even though writing is described as a solitary craft, Mia sees it as a form of connection. "I'm actually very introverted, but becoming a writer has changed my perspective on everything," she confesses.

"It's not so much about selling what the brand has to offer, but selling what the person needs from the brand, and convincing the client that this is how we should talk to them."

Oliver Chong
Strategy Planning Executive, Dentsu

Ms Oliver is a strategic planner whose approach to strategy reflects the modern advertising landscape where creativity, data, and human insight overlap.

"It's no longer just about media or creative strategy," she explains. "My boss coins our role as 'converged strategists' because what we really do is assess both our media and creative toolkits to provide the most well-rounded solutions."

At the heart of her work is the delicate balance between human understanding and analytical rigor. She stresses the importance of understanding motivations and values beyond trends - particularly with Gen Z audiences.

"When brands think of Gen Z marketing, they often think of TikTok trends and slang," she explains. "But we should be looking deeper to discover the why, then you can fit the why to the role that your brand can play."

With most of her role dedicated to new business pitches, she reveals how these high-adrenaline moments push strategists to think boldly and bring fresh energy back into everyday work.

"As a strategist, you get to have a say in how the campaign is going to roll out," she shares. "I'm always inspired to create something that we've never seen in the market."

FEARLESS PANELISTS

Anson Goh
Regional Performance Marketing Lead, Mars Wrigley.

When Anson Goh finally took a seat on The NexGen Show, it felt less like the arrival of a rising talent and more like the confirmation of something the industry already knew: this is a marketer who has moved faster, further and with more intent than most of his generation.

From his humble beginnings as a digital marketing executive to a regional performance marketing lead for a global FMCG brand, this rising star's journey began with curiosity rather than certainty.

"I didn't know what I wanted to do at first," he admits. "I ended up going with a generalised role like digital marketing executive in order to build my foundation."

Six years later, Anson oversees campaigns that span Southeast Asia and North Asia, but remains one of the youngest professionals in every room he enters.

He often finds himself advising teams far older and more experienced than he is - a dynamic that, in Asian markets, can be particularly sensitive.

Amira Mahathir
Creative Strategy @ ZUS Coffee.

Born in Croatia and raised across multiple continents, Amira's journey into the Malaysian advertising industry was anything but linear.

The daughter of a diplomat, her childhood was shaped by constant movement - from Canada to Switzerland, back to Malaysia, then on to Tokyo - giving her a global perspective long before she entered the workforce.

Despite this international upbringing, advertising was never part of the plan.

Until now.

SPOTLIGHT SPEAKER

Rudy Khaw
Former CEO of AirAsia brand co.
Founder of Lobby Hours.

Rudy was the CEO of AirAsia brand co. – a brand management company under the Capital A group that focuses on building brands and culture for ASEAN through brand development, management, licensing, creation as well as IP development.

A strong believer in pop-culture and how it influences the past, present and future, Rudy has led and grown the AirAsia brand from an ASEAN airline to a globally recognised one that has been named World's Best Low-Cost Airline by Skytrax 16 years in a row.

He has also spearheaded numerous award-winning brand campaigns – including initiatives with Taylor Swift, David Foster, Roberto Carlos, Park Ji-Sung, MotoGP, UFC, (RED) and 88rising - to provide AirAsia wider visibility across the globe, championing the brand's spirit of inspiring youth to Dare to Dream.

Rudy recently launched a new brand-led creative practice called Lobby Hours.

In a metrics-obsessed industry, Rudy is unapologetic about defending taste.

“In an era dominated by performance metrics and trend-chasing... that's the problem,” he says. “Everyone's chasing the same trends, the same performance metrics.”

“And my concern with AI is whether it ends up creating more clutter for consumption due to everyone 'creating' but I do think on the flipside, where it provides creatives even more opportunities to be better and push the boundaries.”
