Key Program Modules

THINKING STRATEGICALLY

Strategic thinking is a process that defines the way people think about, assess, view, and create the future for themselves and others. It is the ability to clearly reason through problems, analyze and present arguments in a logical, compelling way, an ability that has become a key skill for successful leaders in today's world. In its simplest form, strategic thinking is an ability to plan, think outside the box, envisaging new solutions, anticipating questions, and solving any type of problems. People that possess strategic thinking skills become top talent, and it's a quality that makes many managers and executives successful leaders. In our ever turbulent and competitive market, strategic thinking can give us the competitive edge we need to win.

COMMUNICATING EFFECTIVELY

A great communicator has two unique qualities: appropriate skills and personal confidence. In this module participants will master the skills and style that will make them a better speaker, presenter, and communicator. Here we will cover the key communication skills, the characteristics that can make or break the audience's impression of a speaker. Participants will explore what turns listeners on and off, understand the impact of non-verbal communications, as well as positive and negative body messages. They will also learn how to convey their points meaningfully to their audience, aiming to positively influence the audience's attitude or behavior.

PRESENTING CONVICINGLY

Structuring and writing a winning presentation is as critical as the way one delivers it. In this section we will learn some key techniques to structure winning presentations, with focus, visual appeal, and clear structure. A great, convincing presentation does not demand one to have all the bells and whistles to impress the audience with technical skills. Rather, one must impress his/her audience with knowledge, ideas, and understanding of the audience's problems, points of view and solutions needed.
